

Technical Assistant – Robert Kralovics Lab

The research group of Robert Kralovics at CeMM is seeking an enthusiastic technical assistant eager to contribute to cutting-edge research in the field of cancer genetics and immunotherapy for the treatment of hematological malignancies.

Requirements and desired qualifications

- ✓ Master's degree in life sciences
- ✓ Technical assistance including ordering and preparing of reagents and consumables
- ✓ Lab management including writing SOPs, maintenance of equipment
- ✓ Prior laboratory experience
- ✓ Strong interest in immunology, genetics, cancer
- ✓ Experience in working with mouse models considered an advantage
- ✓ Proficiency in MS Office
- ✓ High accuracy and reliability
- ✓ Excellent interpersonal skills and passion for working in an international environment
- ✓ Solid written and oral communication skills in English

The advertised position will involve responsibilities in laboratory management, cell culture (maintenance, genome engineering), mouse work (including breeding management and genotyping) and general molecular and cell biology techniques.

Application details

If you believe you fit the profile and would like to be part of our international, dynamic research group, please visit our website and apply using the link provided with your cover letter and CV including the contact details of referees. The application deadline is September 17th, 2017. The position is available from October 2017.

The Institute (www.cemmm.at)

CeMM is a flagship institute for biomedical research in the heart of Europe, Vienna. We are committed to highest scientific standards as exemplified by recent publications in top journals including Nature, Science and Cell. CeMM offers a uniquely dynamic, interactive and international environment and is located in a beautiful building at the center of the Medical University campus, within walking distance of Vienna's historical city center. CeMM has been ranked among the top-5 best places to work in academia (<http://the-scientist.com/2012/08/01/best-places-to-work-academia-2012>). Vienna is frequently ranked the world's best city to live in. It is a United Nations city with a large English-speaking community. The official language at CeMM is English, and more than 40 different nationalities are represented at the institute. We are convinced that diversity and a multicultural work environment are clear advantages for successful research and are committed to attract, develop, and advance the most talented individuals regardless of their gender, race, sexual orientation, religion, age, disability status or any other dimension of diversity.